

Regarding Cryptolepis

Dear Friends,

We apologize for the wait for new Cryptolepis extract to be ready. There has been an unexpected delay in receiving the Cryptolepis root, which comes from Africa. This is a plant that is considered at-watch, not quite at risk, but the plant population is not plentiful. There is increased interest in working with the Universities and directly with potential farmers who could possibly grow this plant to meet the growing demand.

We will be making every effort to assure a good supply of the Cryptolepis extract, and supporting those who will be instrumental in the efforts to encourage further plantings of this valuable herb.

Thank you for your understanding,

Kate and the team at Woodland Essence
